

Twelve-year-old Sarah Ann Reisende wanders into a mysterious shop where snow globes open portals to other worlds. After breaking the globe tethered to Earth, she discovers a link between the father she has never known and a world called Elohi. But a warrior named Malvine rules Elohi with his army of vicious hybrids. Can Sarah uncover the truth about her father and find a way home before Malvine seizes control of the shop?

PRESENTATIONS

Presentations average 20 minutes long with additional time for questions afterwards.

Getting Started

Creative writing takes on many forms, from microfiction to a full-length books. Each one a little different in terms of structure and approach. In Getting Started, students will learn five different forms of creative writing with an emphasis on the shorter forms of creative writing and how mastering them can benefit a beginning writer.

Inspiration is Everywhere

Writing is easier when we know what we want to write. But what about those days when we're struggling to get started because we don't know what to write? Every writer gets stuck at some point.

In Inspiration is Everywhere, students will delve deeper into what it means to form a writing habit while learning strategies for writing and brainstorming—even when they don't feel inspired.

Writing and Autism

Being an autistic writer presents a unique set of challenges in career field where both the job and the work rely on understanding and communicating with others. Writing and Autism will introduce students to what it means to be autistic and how being autistic can enhance and challenge a writer's efforts.
